INDEX TO VOLUME XVI

AUTHOR INDEX

Babener, Lianha. Haywire in Hollywood: Girlhood Memories by Movieland Daughters. Winter, 138–147.

Caputi, Jane. Films of the Nuclear Age. Fall, 101–107.

Cassidy, Marsha F. The Duke of Dallas: Interview with Leonard Katzman. Spring, 12–21.

Conlon, James. The Place of Passion: Reflection on Fatal Attraction. Winter, 148–154.

Edgerton, Gary. Introduction: Television Studies and Culture. Spring, 3–5.

Ewing, Dale E., Jr. Film Noir: Style and Content. Summer, 61–69.

Gehring, Wes. A Charlie Chaplin Centennial: 1889–1989 (poem). Fall, 130.

Gehring, Wes. The Hollywood Hays Office or stop, look, and less sin (poem). Summer, 79.

Goostree, Laura. The Monkees and the Deconstruction of Television Realism. Summer, 50–58.

Griffin, Larry D. Death of Our Princess (poem). Summer, 79.

Hamamoto, Darrell Y. Max Shulman: Television Author. Winter, 156–166.

Hoover, Judith. An Early Use of Television as a Political Tool: The 1961 News Conferences of President John F. Kennedy and the Republican Opposition. Spring, 41–48.

Leibman, Nina C. The Family Spree of Film Noir. Winter, 168–185.

Leichter, Martin. Cinematic Sonnet (poem). Summer, 79.

Leichter, Martin. Remembrance of Things Past: The Movie (poem). Fall, 130.

Mould, David H. and Gerry Veeder. The "Photographer-Adventurers": Forgotten Heroes of the Silent Screen. Fall, 118–129.

Plasketes, George M. The Invisible Artist: Lorne Michaels, the Television Comedy Writer in Constrasting Production Environments. Spring, 22–31.

Waller, Gregory A. Flow, Genre, and the Television Text. Spring, 6–11.

Warburton, T. L. A Visit with Fred Rogers: A Guided Tour Through a Special Neighborhood. Spring, 32–40.

Watson, Mary Ann. Primetime Parables of the New Frontier: Mr. Novak Asks What He Can Do for His Country. Summer, 71–78.

Williams, J. P. "When You Care Enough to Watch the Very Best": The Mystique of Moonlighting. Fall, 90–99.

Worland, Rick. Captain Kirk: Cold Warrior. Fall, 109–117.

Yacowar, Maurice. The Religion of Radio Days. Summer, 80–86.

TITLE INDEX

Captain Kirk: Cold Warrior. Rick Worland. Fall, 109–117.

A Charlie Chaplin Centennial: 1889–1989 (poem). Wes Gehring. Fall, 130.

Cinematic Sonnet (poem). Martin Leichter. Summer, 79.

Death of Our Princess (poem). Larry D. Griffin. Summer, 79.

The Duke of Dallas: Interview with Leonard Katzman. Marsha F. Cassidy. Spring, 12–21.

An Early Use of Television as a Political Tool: The 1961 News Conferences of President John F. Kennedy and the Republican Opposition. Judith Hoover. Spring, 41–48.

The Family Spree of Film Noir. Nina C. Leibman. Winter, 168–184.

Film Noir: Style and Content. Dale E. Ewing, Jr. Summer, 61–69.

Films of the Nuclear Age. Jane Caputi. Fall, 101–107.

Flow, Genre, and the Television Text. Gregory A. Waller. Spring, 6–11.

Haywire in Hollywood: Girlhood Memories by Movieland Daughters. Liahna Babener. Winter, 138–147.

The Hollywood Hays Office or stop, look, and less sin (poem). Wes Gehring. Summer, 79.

Introduction: Television Studies and Culture. Gary Edgerton. Spring, 3–5.

The Invisible Artist: Lorne Michaels, the Television Comedy Writer in Constrasting Production Environments. George M. Plasketes. Spring, 22–31.

Max Shulman: Television Author. Darrell Y. Hamamoto. Winter, 156–166.

The Monkees and the Deconstruction of Television Realism. Laura Goostree. Summer, 50–58.

The "Photographer-Adventurers": Forgotten Heroes of the Silent Screen. David H. Mould and Gerry Veeder. Fall, 118–129.

The Place of Passion: Reflections on Fatal Attraction. James Conlon. Winter, 148–154.

Primetime Parables of the New Frontier: Mr. Novak Asks What He Can Do for His Country. Mary Ann Watson. Summer, 71–78.

The Religion of Radio Days. Maurice Yacowar. Summer, 80–86.

Remembrance of Things Past: The Movie (poem). Martin Leichter. Fall, 130.

A Visit with Fred Rogers: A Guided Tour Through a Special Neighborhood. T. L. Warburton. Spring, 32–40.

"When You Care Enough to Watch the Very Best": The Mystique of Moonlighting. J. P. Williams. Fall, 90–99.

BOOK REVIEWS (by book author)

Branson, Clark. Howard Hawks: A Jungian Study. Reviewed by Harvey Roy Greenberg. Fall, 135.

Burton, Julianne (Ed.). Cinema and Social Change in Latin America: Conversations with Filmmakers. Reviewed by Harold E. Hinds, Jr. Summer, 87.

Butler, Ivan. Silent Magic: Rediscovering the Silent Film Era. Reviewed by Chris Foran. Fall, 132–133.

Doane, Mary Anne. The Desire to Desire: The Woman's Film of the 1940s. Reviewed by Jane Caputi. Fall, 133.

Duke, Patty and Kenneth Tynan. Call Me Anna: The Autobiography of Patty Duke. Reviewed by Susan Pam Alpert. Summer, 88.

Hill, John. Sex, Class and Realism: British Cinema 1956/1963. Reviewed by Ellen E. Berry. Fall, 131.

Levy, Emanuel. And the Winner Is. . . : The History and Politics of the Oscar Awards. Reviewed by Mickie Edwardson. Fall, 131–132.

McDonald, Archie P. (Ed.). Shooting Stars: Heroes and Heroines of Western Film. Reviewed by Chris Foran. Fall, 132.

Pratley, Gerald. Torn Sprockets: The Uncertain Projection of the Canadian Film. Reviewed by Janis L. Pallister. Fall, 134–135.

Sheehan, Helena. Irish Television Drama. Reviewed by Andrew Greeley. Fall, 132.

Shull, Michael and David E. Wilt. Doing Their Bit: Wartime American Animated Short Films, 1939/1945. Reviewed by Chris Foran. Fall, 135–136.

Spada, James. Grace: The Secret Lives of a Princess. Reviewed by James M. Welsh. Fall, 133–134.

Woll, Allen L. and Randall M. Miller. Ethnic and Racial Images in American Film and Television: Historical Essays and Bibliography. Reviewed by Carlos E. Cortés. Summer, 87–88.

Zucker, Harvey Marc and Lawrence J. Babich. Sports Films: A Complete Reference. Reviewed by Gary E. Dickerson. Summer, 88.